

CALL FOR PAPERS

IEEE Transactions on Industry Applications

Special Issue on

Industrial Automation and Intelligent Process Control (IAPC)

As industries shift towards smarter, more interconnected systems driven by AI, Industrial IoT (IIoT), and intelligent control techniques, there is an increasing need for solutions that enhance precision, adaptability, and efficiency. The integration of automation technologies across operation and control processes is critical for optimizing production, reducing downtime, and achieving real-time responsiveness. However, industries also face significant hurdles such as securing control systems, managing the complexity of automation technologies, and ensuring sustainability in operations. This special issue aims to gather cutting-edge research that responds to these challenges, with a focus on advancing intelligent process control, developing robust automation solutions, and addressing the industrial demand for secure, resilient, and sustainable automation systems. The goal is to drive innovation and provide best practices that meet the evolving needs of industrial automation.

The guest editorial board solicits original research papers with novel contributions in industrial automation, smart manufacturing, intelligent process control, best practices, and more. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to:

- Smart Manufacturing and Factory Automation
- Industrial IoT (IIoT) and Cyber-Physical Systems
- Industrial Control System
- Intelligent Process Control
- Digital Twins in Manufacturing and Control Systems
- Edge and Fog Computing for Industrial Automation
- Applications of electrical and electronic control devices, systems, and methods
- Applications of transducers, sensors, programmable logic controllers, distributed control systems, and control systems software
- AI-Driven Automation in Industry 4.0
- Cybersecurity in Industrial Control Systems
- Sustainable and Green Automation Technologies
- Best practices in industrial automation and control
